A CELESTIAL PECULIARITY The Chinese are, amongst other things, a very grossly feeding people, and, notwith-standing that some pigs are held sacred, fat, fresh pork is their great delight, and strange to say, it seems to agree wonderfully well wi h them. I remember, in one instance, a boat race was to be pulled in Hong Kong between European sailors and Chinese, and in making arrangements, the Celestials were asked what refreshments they would perfer; I think it was two pounds of rosted pork each they requested, and this to be eaten, not atter the race, but just before commencing it, to make them, as they expressed it, "Number one strong." According to our ideas, it would have had anything but that effect: but not so with John Chinaman-

The pork was eaten— The English beaten; and that was not by any means the only occasion on which, equally situated, and pulling in our own boats, they have beaten Europeans I think, taking the average amongst the Chinese, they are as little subject to sickness as almost any nation; but their ideas, or rather manner of expressing their ailments, are peculiar. It was invariably either "too much a hot inside, or too much a colo" (cold) "No can chow chow," was a sad malady; but what amused me most the first time I heard the expression, was that of a Chinese servant I had, who requested one day that I whould intercede with the doctor to give him a plaster to put on his shoulder, and when the desired end to be obtained by so doing was asked, the reply was "Wantchee" (want to) "pull out the wind, had got that wind inside that bone." It was apprently rhenmatism; a strong blister was applied, as desired, and next day the report was "that wind had make a-willo, no got more than small o' piece now." It is seldom that they will put themselves under the treatment of European medical men, and indeed, for anything not surgical, their own doctors seem to answer every pur pose; they themselves say, "Englishman no can savee Chinaman; inside no belong all same Englishman, no makee all same chow chow, how can make all same inside;" and there are not a few foreigners who have in fevers, gout, and diseases peculiar to the climate, consulted with advantage the native practitioners .- Hong Kong to Manilla; by Henry T. Ellis, R. N.

Dr. Hall, in his "Journal of Health," says that very few of the sudden deaths which are said to arise from disease of the heart do really arise from that cause. To ascertain the real origin of sudden deaths, the Doctor says, the experiment has been tried in Europe and reported to a scientific congress held at Strasburgh. Sixty-six cases of sudden death were made the subjects of a thorough post mortem examination. In these cases only two were found who died from disease of the heart. Nine out of the sixty-six died from apoplexy, while there were forty-six cases of congestion of the lungs; that is, the lungs were so full of blood enough for a sufficient quantity of air to en-ter to support life. The Doctor goes on to enumerate the causes which produce conges tion of the lungs. They are: cold feet; tight shoes; tight clothing; costiveness; sitting un-til chilled through after being warmed by labor or a rapid walk; going too suddenly from a close heated room into the cold air. especially after speaking; and sudden depressing news operating on the blood. These causes of sudden death being known, an avoi-That disease is supposed to be incurable, and hence men may not take the pains they would to avoid sudden death if they knew it

"Well, Dick," said the younster saide to his brother, "as he is our father, and it's his team, and he will bear the expense, I think we had better let him eat with us."--"Yes, I think so too, under the circumstances," he replied. "Yes, landlord, you can give him a place at the table."

HAPPY RETORT .- A Methodist minister at the West; who lived on a small salary, was ces known to us to be reliable.

He at last told the non-paying trustees, that he must have his money, as his family were suffering for the necessaries of "Money!" replied the steward, "you preach for money? I thought you preached for the good of souls." "Souls?" replied replied the minister, "I can'teat souls; and if I could, it would take a thousand such as yours to make a meal."

GUANO No. 1. HAVE engaged in the Manipulation of GU ANOS, and am now ready to supply the Far-mers and Planters of the United States with an article which I consider superior to anything of the kind which has yet been produced, having an unusual amount I believe, of the valuable ingredients in this article. During my editorship of the "American Farmer," with which until within a few months, I have been connected for 25 years, I have most emphatically urged upon the Farmers and Plauters that the mixture of the Ammoniacal Gu-ano (Peruvian) with the Phosphatic (Mexican, Columbian, &c.,) was the best and cheapest application to most crops they could apply. they could not work, there not being room general views upon this subject, I refer to the pages of the American Farmer; and also, to my circular just issued (and which will be forwarded to any one desiring it) in which this view is ably sustained by Dr. Bickell, Analytical Chemist, of this
